

Choosing Bridal Lingerie

Weddings are very special moments and bridal lingerie can make a very thoughtful gift for the bride on her wedding-shower party. While the wedding dress is of course important, the wedding night lingerie is as important as well because the couple will be spending quality time together. Intimate apparel like lingerie can definitely spike the honeymoon night. There are various styles of wedding lingerie so you don't have to worry about a limited selection.

The bride's personality should be taken into consideration first and foremost if you plan to give bridal lingerie as a gift during the shower party. As much as possible, in selecting wedding lingerie, make sure that you do not insult or offend the bride's sensibilities. The potential wide selection of wedding lingerie actually ranges in various tastes. If you don't know the bride too well though, it is suggested that you go for the more conservative gift items to avoid offending her. When it comes to lingerie, the opinion can be very subjective for what may be modest for you may be shockingly offensive for another person.

Sure bets can include robes, full length negligee, baby dolls and night gowns. Also, if you are not that sure of the bride's size or would want her to be able to have what she actually wants, you could always give a gift card or a gift certificate to a lingerie shop or even to an online lingerie store.

On the other hand, if you are that close with the bride or you know her inside and out because you have been good friends for a long time, you can have some fun in your selection of bridal lingerie. There are many wedding lingerie styles that can be as naughty as you want them to be and since you know the bride so well, you are assured that she won't be in any way offended at all. White bridal lingerie looks good on all women regardless of size as this color can accentuate almost any curve on the body. White as well is refined and very classy.

Non-traditional wedding lingerie selections can include edible undies and clothing and even themed costumes. You may even opt to give two gifts instead. One will be a fun bridal lingerie with the other being what the bride could actually wear on the honeymoon night itself.

In your gift, always consider your recipient's preference and taste to ensure that you will pick a color and style that the bride will really like.

About the Author

The author has been happily married for several years and maintains sites on exotic leather & sheer lingerie and cheap gifts for girls

Source: <http://www.car-articles.co.uk>